Through CULearn Academic Support, CUC students can receive private, course-specific, one-on-one or group training from qualified student instructors through our peer tutoring program. Tutors can help with content mastery for dozens of subjects and courses as well as help students with academic skills like organization, setting a routine, and timely submission of assignments. Appointments with CULearn: Academic Support tutors can be made via Navigate, calling CULearn, or in-person.

Students in need of accommodations who choose to disclose a disability should contact the Academic Support Coordinator, also located in CULearn CC248, for information concerning accommodations in the classroom. Students must submit an application to Application for ADA Accommodations (https://cm.maxient.com/reportingform.php?ConcordiaUnivChicago&layout_id=21), provide a diagnosis and documentation of testing by a licensed professional, and meet with the Academic Support Coordinator before a letter of accommodations can be issued. Students may contact Academic Support with further questions concerning the application procedures.

Develop your Bachelors, Masters and Doctoral-level writing skills with writing specialists who focus on scholarly writing. Located in CULearn's Writing Center in CC248J, writing tutors offer support at any stage of the writing process from creating outlines to providing suggestions on written drafts. Appointments are in-person or over the phone. Students can also email their papers to writingcenter@cuchicago.edu. Papers will be forwarded to a tutor who will offer suggestions and then emailed back to the student."
